WOMAN NEVER WANTS TO SEE PASTOR AGAIN

Tells Husband's Father Hight Made Her Commit Murder.

BULLETIN
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Salem, Ill., Sept. 25.—Mrs. Elsie Sweeten confessed poisoner of her husband, today was in a highly nervous condition in her cell at the county jail here. After another sleepless night, she again refused solid nourishment and drank only a glass of milk. With hair uncombed and deep circles under her eyes, the poisoner showed the effects of her ordeal. Her physician last night prescribed complete rest. Sheriff Vogt urged the woman to take food, offering to get her anything she wanted but she seemed to have a horror of food, shuddering whenever it was mentioned. The sheriff saw in her recoil from food an exhibition of remorse for killing her husband, whose food she poisoned.

Neighbors of Mrs. Sweeten at Ina said she had subsided only on milk and not much of that since causing the death of her husband July 25 in a love pact with the Rev. L. M. Hight who later poisoned his wife.

Mount Vernon, Ill., Sept. 25.—"I never want to see that man again, never," C. C. Sweeten, declared, Mrs. Elsie Sweeten, his daughter-in-law told him last night in the jail at Salem in referring to the Rev. Lawrence M. Hight, at whose suggestion she poisoned her husband.

"He made me do it. He made me do it," she said over and over again to Mr. Sweeten, who despite his advanced age, had ridden long miles through the chilly night, because, "after all, Elsie is the boys' mother."

He wanted to talk with her about the boys' future.

No Harsh Words
Not a harsh word did he say when he met the woman who had confessed she poisoned his son, her husband, Wilford Sweeten.

"My son is gone and nothing we can do will bring him back," said Mr. Sweeten today. "But there are three little boys to look after. They are fine boys and I want to do right thing by them. For their sake, I hope Elsie does not hang."

State's Attorney Thompson accompanied Mr. Sweeten to Salem at the latter's request. When the aged man confronted Mrs. Sweeten in the jail, he extended his hand without a word. The daughter-in-law took it in both her hands and bowed her head.

"He made me do it," she began. "I didn't want to."

She Blamed Preacher
"I came to talk to you about what to do with the boys," broke in Mr. Sweeten.

"Let me tell you about it," said Mrs. Sweeten. "I didn't want to do it. When he first named it, I said I would not. But he kept after me. I argued for a month but he kept telling me to do it. I was in his power. Anything he said I felt like I must do."

"It was terrible for me to give Wilford the first poison. When he didn't die, Hight came to the house. He handed me a peach and slipped a note in my hand at the same time which said to give him some more. All the time my husband was sick he was coming to my house and giving me notes telling me to give more poison."

Wants to See Children
The mother begged the children never be allowed to come to Salem and visit her in the jail. She insisted that the boys not be separated and that they be sent to the Masonic Orphanage.

When her father-in-law started to leave, Mrs. Sweeten requested him to stay longer, declaring she was "afraid and awfully lonesome" in the Salem jail.

"She was a good girl until the preacher came," said Sweeten as he left the jail. "I feel sure of that. I can't understand it. I think my son was good to her. They seemed to be as happy as most folks. My boy had just finished building a new home for her. He worked hard to provide for her and the children. That preacher is back of it all, but I can't understand it."

Woman Near Collapse: Minister in Jovial Mood
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Nashville, Ill., Sept. 25.—Rev. Lawrence M. Hight, held in jail here in connection with the poison plot that cost the lives of his wife, Anna, and the husband of his confessed accomplice, Mrs. Elsie Sweeten, today showed no outward strain of his plight; while Mrs. Sweeten, in jail at Salem, Illinois, worried more over the future of her three children than her imprisonment.

"Mrs. Sweeten and I are still sweethearts and will remain sweethearts," declared on page two.

Tremendous Cost of Advertising in Larger Periodicals

An article in the current issue of Popular Finance gives an interesting insight into the fabulous sums received via the advertising department by various national magazines. Good Housekeeping charges $2,500 for a page in one color, one insertion. The advertising revenue from a recent issue totaled $411,600. The Women's Home Companion charges $6,800 a page for its advertising in one color. A single number has netted $523,600. The Ladies' Home Journal receives $5,000 a page for its advertising in one color. The April issue figured up $936,000. Pictorial Review received $9,000 per page. Sixty-nine pages in the April issue netted $621,000. A page in The Saturday Evening Post sells for $8,000. The revenue from the issue of March 24 was $966,000. The 12 magazines analyzed in the Popular Finance article, including the ones mentioned here, represented a total circulation of 17,150,000 copies per issue. Their total advertising revenue is $88,245,000. The enormous advertising income is, of course, made possible by the tremendous circulation these publications enjoy.

DAWES TO HAVE HARD SCHEDULE IN MINNESOTA

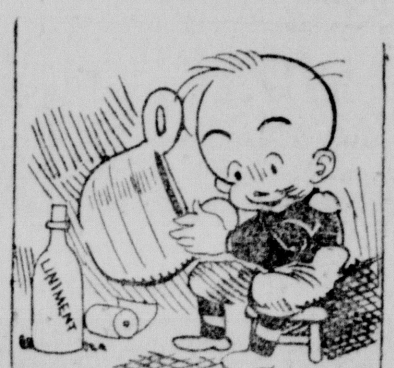

Will Deliver 17 Speeches in Three Day Tour of That State.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Dawes Special, En Route to Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 25.—Chas. G. Dawes swung into Minnesota today to inaugurate three days of the most strenuous campaigning that he has undertaken since he accepted the republican nomination for vice president. Seventeen speeches have been arranged for him beginning with a rear platform address this morning at Rochester, Minn., and ending with a similar talk Saturday evening at Bardwell, Wisconsin. With two exceptions all of the addresses will be given from the rear platform of his special train. The exceptions are the address tonight at the armory in Minneapolis and tomorrow night in the armory at St. Cloud, Minnesota. The nominees let it be known on entering Minnesota today, that he expects in all of these speeches to emphasize what he considers the dominant issue of the campaign, nationally and particularly in Minnesota—the La Follette independent candidacy and the constitution. The agricultural question also is to come in for its share of attention.

Two Business Sessions Ku Klux Klan Konklave
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 25.—Two business sessions were on today's program for the delegates attending the Imperial Klonovalation of the Ku Klux Klan in Convention Hall here. The nature of the business to be transacted was not revealed.

DIXON CHINAMAN REPORTED KILLED IN CHINESE WAR

Charlie Sing Wah Said to Have Met Death There Recently.

That the rebellion which has been under way in China for many weeks has claimed the life of a former Dixonite, was the report that reached this city yesterday. It is said that "Charlie" Sing Wah, who formerly conducted the laundry on Hennepin avenue, was shot and killed by rebel troops. No confirmation of the report had been received by his fellow countrymen who are now in charge of his place of business here, however.

Ashton Man Brought to Dixon to Be Fined

Several residents of Ashton signed a complaint yesterday afternoon which brought legal action to bear upon one of the residents of the city, Calvin Thomas. A state warrant charging Thomas with disorderly conduct was sworn out in the court of Justice of the Peace Jennings and a call sent to the sheriff's office to send for Thomas. No hearing was held at Ashton but the prisoner was brought to the county jail here last evening where he was arraigned before Justice J. O. Shaull. Several complaints were registered against Thomas by neighbors and townspeople, it was said. The chief trouble which led to the affair yesterday afternoon, doubtless resulted from an argument over the bobbing of the hair of his eight year old daughter. Thomas stated last evening that his wife wanted the girl's hair bobbed but that he objected and countered with a proposition to shingle her head if it was to be touched at all. A neighbor is said to have given Mrs. Thomas money necessary to have the girl's hair trimmed.

Another charge that was preferred against Thomas was that he had given a party to a small child until it became drunk and fell down. He denied making the child drunk with wine, but stated that the child liked it and he had given it drinks on several occasions. Justice J. O. Shaull is inflicted a fine amounting to $3 and costs which Thomas paid.

Institute Search for Missing Freight Vessel

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Detroit, Mich., Sept. 25.—The freighter Clifton overdue here from Sturgeon Bay since Monday night, put in at Escoda on Lake Huron Monday night and left Tuesday forenoon, according to a telephone message today from that port. This is the first report of the steamer since it left Mackinaw at 10:20 Sunday morning.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Cleveland, O., Sept. 25.—Still without word from its whale-back freighter Clifton, with 25 aboard, missing since Sunday morning, the Progress Steamship Company was preparing today to start a search for the vessel. The Clifton has not been seen or heard from since 10:20 Sunday morning, when, bound from Sturgeon Bay to Detroit, with a cargo of stone she passed Mackinaw. With favorable weather she should have docked at Detroit Monday night.

Because of a fifty six mile gale, which swept Lake Huron from the southwest Sunday night and which started the northwest Monday, many larger vessels were 24 to 36 hours late in reaching Lake Huron and lower Lake Michigan.

Trying to Take 'AYP' Trail from Dixon

Rockford.—Action on re-routing the AYP trail, transcontinental automobile route, through Rockford instead of from Freeport to Dixon and via the Lincoln highway into Chicago, awaits a decision of the association's board of directors. Rockford's committee has made a proposition relative to raising a sum toward the support of the trail if it is routed through Illinois over the Great Highway. The highway association wanted $25,000, payable in five years, for routing the trail through this city. Rockford's committee considered the sum exorbitant and after the trail was routed south from Freeport made the highway association board of directors a counter proposal. The board has not acted as yet, it was stated today.

Anglo-German Commerce Parley Not Broken Down
Berlin, Sept. 25.—By the Associated Press.—The German foreign office issued a statement today, explaining that the Anglo-German commercial negotiations had not broken down, as reported, but only had been postponed. They will be resumed shortly, the statement adds, with every prospect of a satisfactory conclusion.

Fliers, On Last Laps, Have Covered 28,000 Miles in 350 Hours

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Clover Field, Santa Monica, Cal., Sept. 25.—The world fliers, led by Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, in the from here this morning for Crissy Field, San Francisco at 10:15 A. M.

Leslie Arnold, mechanic for Flight Commander Lowell H. Smith, who keeps the log of the world flight, announced this morning that the fliers travelled 28,000 on their way to Santa Monica and had been in the air 350 hours. He explained that these are "round figures" but said they are very close to the actual mileage and actual running time.

BODY OF SLAIN CHILD FOUND IN GARY SAND DUNE

Tin Worker Admits He Killed Girl After Attacking Her.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Gary, Ind., Sept. 25.—The body of Annie Tomick, who was kidnapped Monday, was found buried in the sand dunes here today when police were led there by Peter Vergolini, 30 years old.

The child had been attacked, strangled and stripped of her clothing, according to the Gary police. Her hands had been bound to her sides.

Vergolini, an employee of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company.

Vergolini was arrested in Chicago last night and taken back to Gary in connection with the disappearance of the child, and after an all night grilling, confessed, according to the police.

Vergolini, according to the police, asked the child to go for a ride in his automobile and then drove to the scrub woods where the attack took place. After the killing and burial, Vergolini went to a moving picture show in Gary and afterward to Chicago.

Vergolini showed little remorse at the inquest today. He repeated the details of the confession to the police and was to be taken this afternoon to jail at Crown Point, Ind., where the grand jury is in session.

Dr. C. W. Young, deputy coroner, who conducted the inquest, said the verdict probably would contain three counts—homicide, rape and kidnapping.

Rockford Man Cuts Throat in Presence of Bride of a Year

Rockford.—Temporarily insane through suffering from a severe head injury sustained when he was six years of age, Raymond H. Volkert, age 27, slashed his throat with a razor in the bedroom of his apartment Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock and died before medical aid could be summoned.

Mr. and Mrs. Volkert, the latter a bride of a year, were seated at a kitchen table preparing to write a letter when the husband arose and walked into the bedroom. He had been gone but a few moments when his wife heard him scream and his body fall to the floor.

Leaving into the room, she found his body on the floor and the blood-stained razor lying nearby. She called W. Nelson, living downstairs in the same building, and L. W. Soderberg. They summoned a physician but life was extinct when the doctor arrived.

Philadelphia Safety Dir. is Not Seriously Sick

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 24.—General S. D. Butler, director of public safety, who was reported not so well, is improved today and his physicians expect him to be able to return to his office, by Monday. Absolute rest for 48 hours has been prescribed. Mayor W. P. Kendrick was waiting for the general to improve sufficiently to be handed the mayor's "communication" which, it was generally reported, is a request for his resignation.

Oregon Youth Died at Hospital this Morning

Donald Myers, aged 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Myers of Oregon, passed away at the Dixon public hospital a few minutes before 5 o'clock this morning. The young man was taken to the hospital about two weeks ago suffering from a severe attack of appendicitis. An operation was performed and it was found that the appendix had ruptured. He had been critically ill for several days. The remains were taken to the home of his parents this morning.

Harmony Predominant in N. Y. Democratic Meeting

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Harmony was the dominant note at the formal opening of the democratic state convention today with Francis E. Cullen of Oswego, the keynote orator. Bitter battles of previous conventions were conspicuous by their absence and all were in readiness to renominate Governor Smith and other state officers without a hitch.

YOUNG "TEDDY" IS NAMED CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Named on First Ballot; Platform Denounces Ku Klux Klan.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, was nominated for governor by the New York republican state convention here today. The choice was made upon the first ballot.

Col. Roosevelt had a majority over the combined votes for his three competitors: Col. William Hayward of New York; District Attorney Guy B. Moore of Buffalo and Supreme Court Justice A. S. Tompkins of Nyack.

PLATFORM HITS KLAN.
The state platform presented here today declared that the republican party recognizes neither color, creed nor race as a test of good citizenship or as a disqualification for holding office.

"It could not do this," the document adds, "and remain republican or American. We condemn and oppose any organization, whether it be called Ku Klux Klan or by any other name, that seeks directly or indirectly to weaken this fundamental American doctrine either in letter or in spirit."

The platform asserts that the republican party nationally is entitled to the confidence of the country because of its record in office and charges that the democratic party in the state "with inefficiency, insincerity and laxity" in the conduct of the Albany government. It declares that the "paralyzing hand" of Tammany Hall has been laid upon state government and business; and outlines its own program for the conduct of the state government.

Pledges Budget System.
The platform pledges the republican party "to establish in Albany next year, the exact duplicate of the budget system so successfully administered by the republican administration at Washington; pledges adequate funds for the furtherance of agriculture; favors a 48-hour week for women in industry and amendments of the workmen's compensation to insure more speedy payments; advocates development of canal transportation and praises the accomplishments of the republican national administration."

The platform was adopted by a chorus of ayes.

George C. Medalla, of New York placed in nomination, the name of Colonel William Hayward of New York.

Guy W. Moore, district attorney of Erie county was placed in nomination by Representative S. W. Denney of Lockport.

Speaker H. E. Machold of the assembly placed in nomination the name of Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy. Speaker Machold was received with great applause from the floor.

There was another outburst of cheering when former Governor Benjamin Odell, of Newburgh, appeared on the platform to place in nomination Supreme Court Justice A. S. Tompkins of Nyack. The demonstration was a personal tribute to the former governor.

Lumber Steamship Under Bonds: Broke Dry Laws

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Mobile, Ala., Sept. 25.—Following a decision rendered by Judge J. W. Golsby of the circuit court upholding the state of Alabama in seizing the Italian steamship Vallescura on the charge of violating the state prohibition laws, bonds in the sum of $15,000 was furnished today for her release. The steamer must also be bonded before she can leave the port. The owners of the steamer will appeal from the decision of the county judge following the submission of demurrers and the case will eventually find its way to the state supreme court and not unlikely to the United States Supreme Court.

Roosevelt Gains Votes in Fight for N. Y. Nomination

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 25.—The naming of a gubernatorial candidate and the adoption of a platform were tasks confronting the republican state convention today. Reports from caucuses yesterday, indicated that Theodore Roosevelt had gained additional votes in the gubernatorial nomination fight. Managers of other candidates declared, however, they would stick by their entrants to the finish.

World Peace Mass Meeting to be Held Here, Oct. 15

A mass meeting of the citizens of Dixon and vicinity in the interest of World Peace, for which all local churches will suspend their usual mid-week services, will be held in the St. Paul's Lutheran church Wednesday evening, Oct. 15. Clinton N. Howard, Chairman of the World Peace Commission, will be the speaker. Numerous local civic organizations will co-operate in the meeting and Mayor F. D. Palmer will preside.

ENORMOUS DRILL PUT IN SERVICE NEAR LEAF RIVER

Will Go Down 2,500 Ft. in Search for Oil or Natural Gas.

One of the largest oil drills that has ever made its appearance in this locality has been set up on the farm of J. H. Newcomer at Leaf River and started "pudding" in the noon hour today. A firm headed by A. C. Phillips & Son who represent eastern capitalists have been working for months securing leases on land near Leaf River extending southwesterly through Grand Detour and into the vicinity of Lee Center and Shaws in this county. The drill which was set in motion at noon today will probably go to a depth of from 2,200 to 2,500 feet into the earth in search of oil or natural gas. Much of this drilling, it is thought, will be through solid rock on the Newcomer farm and it is the plan to reach the depth within a period of 60 days time. The hole will be 10 inches in diameter for the entire depth of the well.

A well has been drilled on the Newcomer farm to supply the big drill engines with water during the operations. Other drills it is expected will be started this fall on other leases in the vicinity.

Davis Returns to Native State for Speeches Today

By Associated Press Leased Wire
On Davis Special En Route to Charleston, Harpers Ferry, W. Va., Sept. 25.—John W. Davis came back to his home state today to present again his cause as the democratic presidential candidate.

Encouraged by his campaign in the west, Mr. Davis is determined to conduct a militant fight on what he has denominated as the three dominant issues—common honesty, common justice and common courage in government.

In his trip through West Virginia, Mr. Davis will speak first at Hinton from the rear of his train. Before reaching Charleston, where he will make his first set address, he will talk at several other intervening towns.

After the Charleston meeting, the democratic standard bearer will go to Huntington where he will speak tonight. Tomorrow he will travel through the coal regions and deliver a scheduled address at Bluefield.

Leaving West Virginia Friday night, Mr. Davis will make his first visit to democratic national headquarters in Washington and will confer there with several of his campaign managers.

Laborites to Protest on Silk Stockings in Court

London, Sept. 25.—(By the Associated Press)—A mighty howl against the practice of England's laborite ministers in attending King George's court in full regalia—silk stockings, knee breeches, clicking swords, embroidered coats, buckled shoes, cocked hats and all the rest of it—will probably go up to the rafters in Queen's Hall when the labor party holds its 21st annual conference, next month.

Many more serious subjects than court costumes will be discussed at the meeting. Some of them call for nationalization of the mines and electric power, municipal distribution of food and other socialist schemes. All the members of the government in England at the time probably will attend the conference which assemblies on Oct. 7.

Coolidge to Give Address in Philadelphia this Eve.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Sept. 25.—President Coolidge will deliver his second out-of-town speech since accepting republican nomination tonight in Philadelphia, leaving here late this afternoon for that city.

As on his visit to Baltimore early this month, the President will return immediately after he completes his address tonight in the White House, following his usual program tomorrow, with a cabinet meeting in the morning.

The address tonight will be delivered in connection with exercises commemorating the 165th anniversary of the meeting of the First Continental Congress.

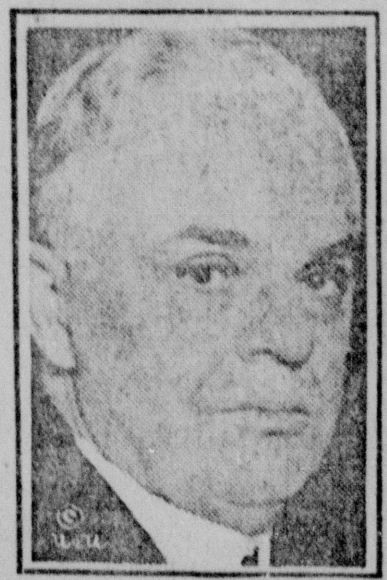

Three Killed by Bombs in China's Civil Warfare

Shanghai, Sept. 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Three persons were killed and four wounded today when aviators in the army of General Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian leader, now at war with the forces of the central government of China, appeared over Lanchow, a city on the line of the Peking-Mukden Railway, 55 miles south of the eastern extremity of the Chinese wall, and pelted the town with more than 20 bombs, according to a report received here by the Eastern News Agency.

Argentine World Flier to Jump to Shanghai City

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Shanghai, Sept. 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Major Pedro Zanni, the Argentine aviator now engaged in an air cruise around the world, will jump from Hongkong to Shanghai tomorrow, according to announcement made here today by Adel Carril, the Argentine consul here.

Former Governor Will Speak Here Tomorrow: Seeking Senatorship

HON. CHARLES S. DENEEN.

Former Governor of Illinois and republican nominee for United States Senator will address the voters of Dixon on the issues of the campaign at a big meeting at the court house tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mr. Deneen is a wonderful speaker, has a clear knowledge of questions political and will doubtless have a large audience here. All voters, and especially the ladies, are invited to the meeting.

Tomorrow at 2 o'clock at the Court House.

BOBCATS BARRED FROM BALLOT IN CALIF. ELECTION

State Supreme Court in Decision Against Ind. Party.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
San Francisco, Sept. 25.—Thirteen presidential electors, named by petitions of California voters and composed to support the candidacy of Robert M. La Follette, stood barred today from the ballot at the general election in November as the result of a 4-3 decision of the state supreme court yesterday.

The decision of the supreme court was based upon the finding that a presidential elector is merely the agent of a political party, operating solely through a political convention as a sort of messenger and therefore cannot be placed on the ballot by initiative petition but only through the agency of a party convention.

Arrived by the decision, La Follette supporters in San Francisco today were discussing measures which might overcome the legal handicap placed upon their candidate by the court. In Los Angeles the La Follette organization resolved to start a movement to recall the justices who wrote the majority opinion.

LaFollette Plans Swing Through Western States

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Sept. 25.—Leaving detailed arrangements of his itinerary to others, Senator R. M. La Follette, independent presidential candidate, is devoting his energies primarily to the preparation of speeches he will deliver. It was indicated today that he would be at least ten days before he makes another address, but that from that time on to election day, he will probably deliver one or more a day.

Mr. La Follette has informed his managers what cities he desires to speak in during the last four weeks of the campaign and they are now engaged in working out a schedule. Barring unforeseen developments, the Senator will swing through the west about the middle of October to the Pacific coast for addresses in Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and probably Los Angeles.

Agriculture Big Issue Says Ex-Gov. Deneen

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Naperville, Ill., Sept. 25.—Charles S. Deneen, republican nominee for United States senator, carried his campaign to northern Illinois today. Following his address here this morning he was scheduled to speak later today at Elgin, Woodstock and Aurora.

Mr. Deneen's speech here was devoted chiefly to agricultural problems and the republican administration record in farm legislation. Effective legislation, he emphasized, must await the accumulation of all the facts in the situation. President Coolidge's suggestion for an agricultural commission to make a thorough study of farm problems was a step in the right direction, he said.

Replacement Troops Sent to Herrin to Guard Jury

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Salem, Ill., Sept. 25.—Two squads of Company I of the Illinois National Guard entrained for Herrin early this morning where they are to replace the detail taken by Captain H. M. Bigelow on duty there since August 30 last to Marion, to act as guards around the court house while the grand jury is investigating the latest Herrin disturbance in which six men were killed.

POLITICAL POT BEGINS BOILING IN LEE COUNTY

Deneen and Frazier Here Friday; Caravan Saturday.

The local political pot will commence to boil in earnest tomorrow, and from now on until the general election on Nov. 4 it is expected the fires will not be allowed to die down under the porridge to be served out by the various parties.

Tomorrow Dixon will hear a United States Senator who wants to see one of his co-workers elected president, and a former Governor of Illinois who wants to be a United States Senator; and on Saturday the people of this community will entertain and listen to the members of the Coolidge-Dawes Caravan.

Deneen and Frazier.
Tomorrow Senator Lynn Frazier of North Dakota, a supporter of Bob LaFollette for president, will deliver an address in behalf of his candidate at the corner of Galena avenue and Second street, at 9:30 o'clock.

At 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon Ex-Governor Charles S. Deneen, republican nominee for U. S. Senator from Illinois, will discuss the issues of the campaign in a meeting at the Court House. Every voter in the community, and especially the ladies, is invited to this meeting. Ex-Governor Deneen is a forceful speaker and knows whereof he speaks.

Caravan Here Saturday.
The Coolidge-Dawes Caravan, which is crossing the continent via the Lincoln Highway, will arrive in Dixon Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and immediately after its arrival some members of the party, which is composed of national leaders and former neighbors of the President, will address a meeting at the Court House. All voters should attend this meeting. Numerous local Republicans are planning to drive to Rochelle at 1 o'clock to meet the Caravan and escort it to this city. No organized reception of that kind has been arranged, but the invitation is extended to all who have cars to drive to Rochelle and welcome and escort the members of the caravan to this city.

Register Lincoln Voters.
A register that will probably take its place as the most exclusive in the world is crossing the continent with the Coolidge-Dawes Lincoln tourists. It is a book which has been opened for autographs of those surviving voters who helped elect Abraham Lincoln sixty years ago.

The idea of making it a part of the equipment of the tour came to the Republican National Committee from a desire to make the document as complete as possible. From day to day, as the caravan treks the Lincoln Trail, these grizzled veterans of 15 presidential campaigns are adding their names to the signatures already scrawled in the precious book.

As the survivors of the Lincoln campaign could hardly go to a central point to enroll their names in the register, the register is being taken to them. Added interest is attached to the plan to compile these names because the tour is being made over the highway named after the great Emancipator.

From present indications several pages of names will be gathered for the book. Already the list has exceeded the expectations of those who conceived the idea, and the aged veterans continue to come forward and register with the same determination they will show when they cast their votes for Coolidge in November.

Students of American history find that only once before in the history of the nation has a political caravan gone forth across the country. That was immediately after the War of the Revolution, when in 1787 a ship called the "Constitution," drawn by twenty white horses, journeyed from New York to Philadelphia on a huge float. As the nation then was limited to the thirteen original states, the trip was considered national in character.

At that time the caravan journeyed in behalf of the United States Constitution, then being framed. Prominent speakers pleaded for its support.

Today, by the singular coincidence the Coolidge-Dawes caravan is crossing the continent, not only in behalf of the Presidential candidates, but again in behalf of the Constitution.

Is Longest Tour of Kind.
The Coolidge-Dawes Lincoln tour is probably the longest transcontinental procession ever undertaken in the interest of a presidential candidate. Every indication now points to the participation of about a quarter of a million automobiles in the escorts that will accompany the caravan in its various stages across the nation.

From a historical standpoint this tour takes rank, though in a different way, with the memorable covered wagon migration. The Coolidge-Dawes caravan, however, eclipses

Boy Steals Ride on Wagon; Falls to Death

Freeport, Ill.—Preston Stiffler, age 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Stiffler, of the village of McConnell near here, died Monday night at 7 o'clock from injuries received about 5:30 o'clock when he fell from a wagon on which he had been riding, one of the wheels passing over his neck. His neck was broken and he was unconscious when picked up.

Young Stiffler and other youngsters were riding on a wagon heavily loaded with gravel that was being hauled to a spot some distance out from the town where road repaving was in progress.

In some way he lost his balance and tumbled off one end of the wagon, falling in such a manner that his head was in the path of one of the wheels, which passed over the neck crushing it.

Physicians who attended the lad marveled that his life was not instantly snuffed out. He lingered, however, an hour and a half before death took him.

L. Shippy, driver of the wagon, knew nothing of the accident until he heard other lads scream. He stopped his team as quickly as possible and helped carry the lad to his home and summon doctors.

the trip in which the pioneers blazed the trail in the 40s from the standpoint of spectacular effect, in that it is virtually a unified procession of five miles in length against one mile for the covered wagons, and because it is being viewed by the hordes of people who are the ancestors of the early western pioneers.

Six Cars in Beginning.

The tour started with six automobiles from Plymouth carrying speakers of national reputation and some of the President's friends, espousing the Republican cause. As it met at each state line by committees of Republicans in motor cars and accompanied through to the next state by scores of Coolidge-Dawes enthusiasts, it is now believed that 250,000 cars will have escorted it by the time it reaches California. Reports from Eastern States are that the average length of the procession reached thus far daily has been about five miles.

Every man, woman and child who joins the tour is a staunch Coolidge-Dawes advocate and the voters of each state are determined to outdo those of the preceding State in the matter of demonstration. As the bands and shouting crowds on one side of the state line leave the caravan, those on the other side attempt to exceed the enthusiasm their neighbors have shown for the campaign tour.

The tour will traverse seventeen States and visit more than 300 cities. It is following the route of the Lincoln National Highway.

TO THE GRASSHOPPER AND THE CRICKET

Green little vaulter in the sunny grass. Catching your heart up at the feel of June; Sole voice that's heard amidst the busy noon. When even the bees lag at the sum-mering brass; And you, warm little housekeeper, who class With those who think the candles come too soon. Loving the fire, and with your trick-some tune Nick the glad silent moments as they pass; O sweet and tiny cousins, that be-long One to the field, the other to the hearth. Both have your sunshine; both, though small, are strong At your clear hearts and both seem given to earth To sing in thoughtful ears their nat-ural song— Indoors and out, summer and win-ter—Mirth.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—

Add to Meat Loaf. Your meat loaf will be more at-tractive to look at if you put a row of hard-boiled eggs through the center so when it is sliced a portion of egg will be in the center of each.

Keep Piano Clear.

Do not load the top of your piano with photographs. Photographs may be hung in the bedroom if desired but they are not of sufficient decorative importance to hang on the walls of a living room.

New Electric Teapot.

The newest electric teapot has a teaball connected by a chain to a movable knob in the cover.

Soap Door Hinge.

You can stop the creaking of a door by rubbing the hinge with a piece of soap.

Don't Cover Cheese.

Do not keep cheese covered too closely or it will mould rapidly.

Pineapple Improve Flavor.

Pineapple may be added to chicken salad and greatly improve the flavor.

Fancy Sugar.

From the confectioner you may get red or green crystal sugar that is very novel to serve with afternoon tea.

Menus for a Family

Tested by SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—Baked apples, cooked wheat cereal, thin cream, creamed codfish on toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Corn pudding, creamed celery, whole wheat bread and butter, jelly, tea, milk.

Dinner—Baked white fish, scalloped potatoes, mashed turnips, romaine salad, whole wheat rolls, steamed date pudding, milk, coffee.

Corn Pudding. Four or five ears of sweet corn, 1 tablespoon flour, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 cup milk, 2 eggs.

Grate corn or cut lengthwise through the center of each row of kernels, then cut a thin slice from tops of kernels and scrape out milk with blunt edge of knife. Beat whites and yolks of eggs separately. Beat yolks until thick and lemon colored. Add corn, flour, sugar, salt, milk and pepper and mix well. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry on a platter with a wire whisk. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake half an hour in a moderate oven. Serve at once or the soufflé will fall.

Steamed Date Pudding. Four tablespoons butter, 1/2 cup molasses, 1/2 cup milk, 1/2 cup white flour, 1 1/2 cups graham flour, 1/2 teaspoon soda, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg, 1/2 pound dates.

Soften butter. Beat eggs well. Add molasses, butter and milk and beat with egg beater. Mix and sift white flour, salt and soda. Add to graham flour with spices and stir into first mixture. Mix well. Scald dates, remove stones and cut in small pieces. Stir into dough. Put into a buttered mold and steam, 2 1/2 hours. Serve with lemon sauce.

Lemon Sauce. One cup sugar, 1 cup boiling water, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 lemon, few grains salt. Mix sugar and cornstarch. Add boiling water slowly, stirring constantly. Add salt and boil five minutes or until mixture is clear. Add butter and lemon juice and remove from the fire. Cool and serve.

A few gratings of the rind of the lemon can be boiled with the sugar and water mixture if a sharper sauce is wanted.

This pudding can be reheated and used later in the week if there is any "left-over."

Entertained for Miss Charlotte Campbell

Last evening an exceptionally pretty pre-nuptial party was held at the home of Mrs. A. A. Rowland, at which time Mrs. A. W. Leland and Mrs. Rowland entertained with five tables of bridge for Miss Charlotte Campbell, who is to marry George Fries.

The Rowland home was most attractively decorated in yellow, one of Autumn's favorite colors, a profusion of flowers in this color, greeting one in each room.

A happy evening was spent in entertainment and Miss Campbell felt herself to many good wishes and clever puns. The entire evening was one of much pleasure for everyone present.

Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Adams Surprised

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. George T. Adams, who reside at 321 College avenue, were completely and happily surprised by a company of about thirty friends, who planned the event for the newlyweds. Mrs. Adams before her marriage was Miss Katherine Gladys Cashion. The couple were genuinely surprised but made their guests welcome and all spent a happy evening in games and music and in enjoying the tempting refreshments served. Another pleasant feature, also a surprise was the presentation to the host and hostess of a number of gifts from the guests, a miscellaneous shower. At a late hour after a merry evening, all departed for their homes wishing the bride and bridegroom many years of happiness.

Will Marry Saturday at High Noon

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Rowland will leave for Hedrick, Iowa, tomorrow, where on Saturday they will attend the wedding of their elder son, Harold Rowland, to Miss Vada Marie Hensley.

The wedding will take place at high noon at the home of the bride's parents, the marriage service to be solemnized by the bride's uncle.

On the return from their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rowland will reside in Rochelle, Ill., where he is a partner in a drug store. He is a graduate pharmacist and has many friends here who will wish the young couple much happiness.

ENJOYED WEINIE ROAST AT LOWELL PARK

The employees of the O. H. Martin dry goods store took advantage of the wonderful weather of yesterday and motored to Lowell park at the supper hour. At the park they prepared an appetizing weinie roast with "many accessories" and report of the most delightful of evenings. The weather this summer has not been conducive to much picnicking and this wonderful weather is again coaxing out the picnic baskets, the paper plates and napkins and the out-door appetite. The picnickers at the park last report the foliage of much beauty, just beginning to be "turned" by the antics of Jack Frost.

Entertained for Miss Emma Ankeny

On Tuesday evening, Mrs. Sumner Wilson delightfully entertained at her home, with a miscellaneous shower for Miss Emma Ankeny, who is to become the bride of George Pitzer in the very near future.

The affair was an entire surprise to Miss Ankeny. The evening was spent in games and music, and a mock wedding took place, which everyone very much enjoyed. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. At a late hour the guests departed, wishing the bride-to-be success and happiness.

Geyer-Schmidt Wedding Yesterday

Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Minnie Geyer of Ashton, one of the prettiest of autumn weddings took place. At this time Miss Mae M. Geyer and Raymond Schmidt, of Dixon, were united in marriage, Rev. T. L. Jones of Ashton officiating at the impressive service.

The Geyer home was simply but beautifully decorated for the occasion in a profusion of flowers. The guests at the ceremony were the immediate relatives.

Elmer H. Pearce of Chicago attended Mr. Schmidt as best man and the sister of the bride, Miss Marion Geyer, attended her as maid of honor.

The bride was lovely in a gown of turquoise blue satin faced canton crepe. She carried a shower bouquet of Gail Curci roses. Her maid of honor was charmingly gowned in silver grey, with a corsage of roses.

The bride's traveling costume was beautiful, of aster blue canton crepe with hat and shoes encoeurte.

After a wedding collation Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt left for Springfield, Ill., where they will attend the State Conclave of the Grand Commandery, Knights Templar, of Illinois, Mr. Schmidt being a Str Knight.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt are highly esteemed young people with hosts of friends both in Ashton and Dixon and they are extended at this time the hearty best wishes of all.

Formal Ball at K. T. Conclave Held Tonight

By Associated Press Leased Wire Springfield, Ill., Sept. 25.—Advance detachments of the 10,000 or more Knights Templar expected to attend the 68th annual conclave of the grand commandery of Illinois, were arriving here today for the annual formal ball which will be held tonight.

The conclave proper will open tomorrow and last through Saturday. Representatives of the eight-five commanderies in the jurisdiction of the state of Illinois will attend the ball tonight, in honor of Eminent Grand Commander Harry Hanson of Princeton and Springfield. Only Str Knights, in full uniform, with their ladies will be admitted. A formal reception will be held at the local temple this afternoon for visiting ladies. Most of the 26 uniformed bands and drum corps in the state are expected to be present, and in addition to these, a delegation of 200 from the commandery club of St. Louis, accompanied by a band is expected. The Woodlawn band of one hundred pieces from Chicago, the Columbia Commandery band of Chicago and the Joliet Commandery band are expected to arrive today. The conclave will open tomorrow morning with a gigantic parade in which ten thousand Knights, with their bands will participate. Sessions of the conclave will then convene in the Centennial Building.

ENJOYED WEINIE ROAST AT LOWELL PARK

The employees of the O. H. Martin dry goods store took advantage of the wonderful weather of yesterday and motored to Lowell park at the supper hour. At the park they prepared an appetizing weinie roast with "many accessories" and report of the most delightful of evenings. The weather this summer has not been conducive to much picnicking and this wonderful weather is again coaxing out the picnic baskets, the paper plates and napkins and the out-door appetite. The picnickers at the park last report the foliage of much beauty, just beginning to be "turned" by the antics of Jack Frost.

Entertained for Miss Emma Ankeny

On Tuesday evening, Mrs. Sumner Wilson delightfully entertained at her home, with a miscellaneous shower for Miss Emma Ankeny, who is to become the bride of George Pitzer in the very near future.

The affair was an entire surprise to Miss Ankeny. The evening was spent in games and music, and a mock wedding took place, which everyone very much enjoyed. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. At a late hour the guests departed, wishing the bride-to-be success and happiness.

ANNUAL OGLE CO. FARM PICNIC WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

Over 3,500 Spent Day at Fair Grounds and Heard Program.

Oregon, Sept. 24.—More than 3,500 attended the annual farm picnic held at the Fairgrounds here yesterday under the auspices of the Ogle County Farm Bureau and the merchants of the county.

An all day program had been arranged by D. E. Warren, county advisor, assisted by members of the commercial clubs in the towns throughout the county.

A basket dinner at noon was followed by an extensive program including an address on "Community Enterprise" by W. E. D. Rummell, one of the editors of Orange Judd Farmer. The speaker emphasized the importance of co-operation between farm and city dwellers as essential to the upbuilding of any community.

West Side Cops Honors.

Honors in athletic events during the afternoon were largely appropriated by residents from the west side of the county. An exciting baseball game was won by this delegation, the score being 9-6 and the east-siders also succumbed in a tug of war.

A "grab race" for the children proved an interesting feature as did the other events on the athletic program.

Henry Casper and H. V. Casper of Chana, composed the winning team in the "barnyard golf" tournament, second honors being awarded Edward Avery of Mt. Morris and George Beck Oregon.

Rochelle Band on Program. George Stukenberg of Forreston was awarded the prize for having the largest family in attendance. Thirteen members of the Stukenberg family registered at the ground.

The Rochelle band added to the entertainment by playing at frequent intervals throughout the day. Merchants from every city in the county assisted farm bureau officers in arranging the day's program.

Nearly four times as much paper is used eventually will become smaller.

ONE FORM OF MADNESS.

A "boy Robber," arrested, says he staged a score of holdups and robberies to get material for magazine stories he intended to write. His idea was to watch the reactions of human nature confronted by a pistol, then work his observations into fiction.

Unless this lad is kidding the police, he is in earnest. In which event, he appears to have a form of the malady known as prapho-mania.

Graphomania is a definite and recognized form of insanity. The victim has the "the urge to write," just as the kleptomaniac has
"the urge to steal."

Unfortunately, the graphomaniac usually turns out nothing but drivel. Still more sadly, he occasionally finds a market for it. In your reading you've encountered some terribly punk stuff, which strikes the fancy of unatties holding editors' jobs.

Magazines get fiction manuscript by the freight carload. The writing business is extremely overcrowded. Despite this competition, there's always a shortage of "the right stuff." Most of the flood of stories come from graphomaniacs.

It's debatable whether all writers aren't graphomaniacs, even the brilliant, capable and successful ones. For writers are like other people fundamentally; writing is a business just as much as selling sausage or measuring cloth; and, to succeed, a man has to be more or less of a monomaniac on the subject to which he devotes his time.

The human brain never appears fathomless and mysterious than when you try to figure out what makes one man select, say, coal for concentrating his efforts on, while others focus burningly on ice, oranges, cloth, string and so on.

There's more to it than the fact that the man thinks he can make money out of the commodity that appeals to him hypnotically.

Observe the Webster definition of "mania": "Violent derangement of mind; specifically, a form of insanity marked by emotional exaltation, acceleration of the flow of ideas, and motor restlessness. Excessive excitement or enthusiasm."

If that definition doesn't blanket the conventional formulas for success in life, what does?

COAL MUDDLING AGAIN.

It is the same old story about coal. The demand fell off, as usual, with warm weather. Thereupon production slumped. Mines in many fields have not been working more than half time for months. The available supply now is below normal.

With the return of cold weather there will be brisk demand again. The mines and dealers will not be able to supply it. That will mean hardship to consumers and the kiting of prices.

It is undoubtedly to the consumers' benefit to order his winter's coal without more delay.
It should be also to the dealer's benefit. The two should be able to get together and make arrangements for delivery advantageous to both.

Dealers, generally speaking, can afford to make better rates for early orders, to be delivered at their convenience. Often they can afford to make early delivery and wait for their money until the buyer is beginning to use his coal, because it keeps their working force busy and distributes the rush and strain evenly over several months.

The mine operators can afford to make terms with the dealers fitting in with this plan, because it makes their operation more continuous and steady.

Needless to say, it is good for the miners.
It is good, too, for the railroads.

SPOONS STILL SAFE.

The press of the world, it appears, owes an apology to the American advertising men who were received recently in the Elysee palace in Paris.

It is stated officially by a French senator that the guests did not steal the historic gold spoons used on that occasion. The report that several dozen spoons were missing after the reception was merely a French joke. This assurance is given in reply to an inquiry from the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, which felt their honor assailed.

French humor often does elude Americans.
This jest got pretty deep under the hides of its victims, and of Americans in general because it hit at a notorious American weakness—the eternal quest for souvenirs.

It is pleasant to know that the honor of our advertising men is vindicated. With that fact established, it may be just as well to let the point sink home, and recognize that Americans do get in bad abroad by the careless assurance with which they accumulate souvenirs, regardless of the rights and feelings of the owners.

A ROYAL DRUMMER.

The Prince of Wales, before coming to America, amused himself by playing the drum in an American jazz orchestra in London. The orchestra leader credits His Royal Highness with having "a wonderful knowledge of rhythm and syncopation." He has a set of drums at York house, his town home, and is said to be a pretty good drummer.

This is admirable. With the former German kaiser sawing wood and the heir to the British throne playing a drum, it must be admitted that royalty is far less of a menace to democratic institutions, and probably more genuinely useful, too, than it has been for ages.

Nothing is new, not even "strip poker." An archeologist finds that the ancient Mayans in Yucatan used to wager their clothes on a handball game.

The rain falls alike upon the just and upon the unjust, and just the same, and just as easy.

NO. 4—THE SOUR OLD WOMAN UNDER THE WATER-FALLS

Nancy and Nick and the Sand man left the house of the kind Green Wizard in the treetops and went toward the house of the Sour Old Woman Who Lived Under the Water-Fall.
Tap, tap, tap! they went on her front door.

The Sour Old Woman herself opened it.

"How do you do?" she said sourly.

"What do you want?"

"We came to get my bag of sleepy sand," said the Sand Man. "Someone stole it."

"Well, I can't help that, can I?"
said the Sour Old Woman.

"Maybe not," said Nick. "But you can help us. It's time for all the babies to go to sleep and they can't unless the Sand Man finds his bag of sleepy sand. We just came from the Green Wizard's house and we looked into his magic gazing ball."

"What's that?" shouted the Sour Old Woman. "What's all this about a magic gazing ball? What did you see?"

"We saw Tweedledee come to your house and put the magic sand under the floor," said Nick.

At that the Sour Old Woman smiled a sour smile and opened her door wide.

"Come right in, all of you," said
she. "I just wanted to see how smart you were. Of course Tweedledee stole the sleepy sand. He loves to tease the babies, the racial, and he has always been jealous of the Sand

JOHN W. DAVIS HIS LIFE STORY

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS

John W. Davis, son of John James and Anna Kennedy Davis, was born in Clarksville, Va., on Easter Sunday, April 13, 1873. He received B. A. and Bachelor of Law degrees from Washington and Lee University by the age of 22. His first wife, formerly Miss Julia McDonald of Charlottesville, Va., died in 1900. In 1904 Davis was elected president of the West Virginia State Bar Association. In 1910 he was elected to Congress from the First District in West Virginia—the first Democrat to be sent to Congress from that district in 20 years.

CHAPTER V

While not exactly a "stormy petrel" in Congress, John W. Davis, representative from West Virginia took prominent part in at least four important political fights, centering around the tariff, the rights of labor, the recall of United States Supreme Court decisions, and the liquor question.

The first blow he struck after stepping into the national political arena was against the Payne-Aldrich bill, providing for a high protective tariff.

The measure had been bitterly opposed in both House and Senate, branded as "a rich man's tariff."

That section of it relating to wool—known as "Schedule K"—was particularly obnoxious to its opponents.

President Taft, candidate for reelection, had said in his famous Beverly statement: "The woolen schedule is indefensible and I propose to say so."

Davis made "Schedule K" the definite objective of his fight. All his energies were directed toward having wool placed on the free list. Failing in this, he at least wanted the tariff on wool reduced.

This was the theme of his first speech in the House, delivered June 16, 1911, after the tariff war had been raging for about two years.

In this speech he flayed the woolen manufacturers and hinted at the influences that had been brought to bear to secure the tariff measure's passage.

Though a Democrat, he lauded Republican Senator La Follette and "other distinguished members of the Republican party who have joined with Democrats in the great chorus of disapproval."

He pointed out that the lion of the woolen manufacturers and the lamb of the wool growers lay down together in 1887 and put through a high tariff on wool.

The growers, he said, had been deluded into believing, that with a high duty in effect, they would receive better prices. Instead, the manufacturers took all the profits and the growers gained nothing.

The growers were getting better prices for wool in London than in Boston, he declared, even though this country had a 10-cent duty. Despite the tariff, he stated, production of wool had fallen off one pound for every person in the United States.

He wound up with fireworks—"With Schedule K thus discredited in Congress and out of it and condemned in the great court of public opinion, it seems hardly worth while at this time to catalogue its faults and inequalities. The wonder is that it should have survived so long, notwithstanding the enormous and potential forces mustered to uphold it."

"Begotten in greed and spawned in falsehood, it has thrived to this day on one long series of deceptions."

But despite the efforts of Davis, the Payne-Aldrich tariff remained in effect until cut down by the Underwood measure, passed under President Wilson's administration.

Davis went into his second congressional battle as a champion of organized labor, unholding the right to strike and attacking the practice indulged in by many lower court judges of issuing injunctions to prevent it.

The capital-labor controversy in Congress had been precipitated by Judge Grosscup's decision in the Debs' case, arising from the Illinois railroad strike. Union workmen were white-hot with rage. A bill was introduced in the House to curb the use of the court injunction as a weapon of capital.

Davis spoke—"When capital and labor clearly understand each other's rights, the first step on the road to industrial peace will have been taken," he said.

"What reason is there for refusing the right of an employer to discharge his workmen, and the right of the workmen to leave the service of an employer? These rights are above and beyond all control by any process of injunction.

"Would any employer tamely submit to a court order which compelled him to retain in his service a man whose labor was no longer useful to him? Can any man be compelled to labor against his will? If the employer breaks a contract by discharging his employee, or if the employee breaks a contract by leaving his employer, the remedy is in action for damages."

"The right to strike has won its way against the judicial opposition of a hundred years. The right of peaceful picketing is imbedded in the law."

Then he made that section of the speech now pointed out as a "political classic" pointing out the power laws by the legislature or their enforcement by the executive.

"But as a shibboleth and a slogan, the phrase has come to mean vastly more. It is the expression of a long standing complaint, which with many has ripened into a deep-seated conviction, that the writ of injunction has been carelessly, if not wrongfully, used; that it has been turned to purposes beyond its proper scope; that an evil has sprung up which calls for legislative action."

The anti-injunction bill passed the House by an overwhelming vote. In 1912 Davis acted as one of the seven managers for the House in the impeachment of Judge R. W. Archibald, and in scoring Archibald he laid down rules to govern all officeholders. He said:

"No man can justly be considered fit for public office of whatever rank or kind who does not realize the double duty resting upon him—first, to administer his trust with unflinching honesty, and second, to so conduct himself that public confidence of "catch" phrases. He said:

"The history of government in America is written in phrases; in mind; a wrong idea burns itself into the national consciousness; an aspiration communicates itself from soul to soul, until the purpose of the nation is stirred by a common desire, but the wrong is not righted; the idea is not transmuted into action; the aspiration is unrealized until some happy phrase crystallizes public opinion, and progress and reform result."

"So with the phrase, Government by injunction."

"In themselves the words are meaningless enough, for an injunction is necessarily a form of government; it is the direct exercise of governmental power by the judicial branch, and as such is legitimate and as necessary as the making of

In him shall remain unshaken. "A public man, it is true, may be chased as ice and pure as snow and not escape suspicion. Try as he may he can not always avoid putting himself in any position to which suspicion can reasonably attach. "More can not be expected of him, but nothing else should be permitted."

Missionary Work M.E. Church Short of Funds

Chicago.—Constantly falling income for the benevolent work of the Methodist Episcopal church, and the possibility of curtailment for missionary work at home and abroad, resulted in the issue today of a telegram to bishops and editors of the Methodist Episcopal church, which says that the World Service receipts to Aug. 31 were $1,679,000 below last year's receipts.

Drs. R. J. Wade, Executive Secretary, and Orrin W. Auman, Treasurer, of the World Service Commission, in the telegram says: "The receipts for benevolent purposes from the four and a half million members of the Methodist Episcopal church showed a shortage for June, July and August of $785,000, or more than forty-five percent."

The telegram states that the receipts at the church's headquarters in Chicago from fourteen large and small conferences 'reported to date a thirty percent below last year.'

"If this decrease of receipts continues," the Commission warns in the communication that "it will complicate the closing of at least twenty-five percent of mission schools, hospitals and churches, and the dismissal of at least five thousand of the twenty thousand native workers, and the recall of three hundred of the 1,165 missionaries."

The decrease also threatens to undermine the home mission work of rural and frontier fields and serious curtailment and other reformation work as well as the church educational program, Dr. Wade said.

The telegram says that "the trend of all fall Methodist Episcopal conferences makes the situation desperate and requests the bishops and editors to 'impress the facts on church pastors and members that only universal and tremendous response giving can save World Service from facing disaster.'"

Wheat Pooling Economic Fallacy Says Professor

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 24.—Wheat pooling is an "economic fallacy and can succeed only on a rising market," Dr. James E. Boyle, professor of rural economy, Cornell University today told the Grain Dealers National Association in convention here.

Present wheat pools, he declared, "are but an evanescent phase of our economic evolution. They will all disappear. They are not cooperation, but a substitute for it and an enemy to farmers' elevators."

Dr. Boyle asserted that local farmers' elevators were "true cooperation and had saved money," but he added, they are not spectacular enough for leaders. He characterized the formation of the U. S. Grain Growers Inc., as a "dramatic gesture of these leaders." He declared it "spent $750,000 of the farmers' money in three years and then did without marketing any grain."

After tracing the birth and failure of several wheat pools, Dr. Boyle said the ten wheat pools handling 1923 wheat controlled but 3.3 per cent of the crop. "To withhold from market such small part of the total crop," he continued, "could not influence prices and amount to sheer gambling at the farmers' risk."

BOYS WILL HANG

CHARLES DOBBS (ABOVE) AND THOMAS J. FORAN.

Baltimore—Two boys, both from poor families, have both been sentenced to death in Baltimore.

They are Thomas J. Foran, 18, and Claude Dobbs, 19. They were found guilty by three judges on a charge of murdering Louis Cohen in an attempted holdup of Cohen's store. One of their companions was killed by police when he attempted to escape and another confessed and was given life imprisonment.

Both Foran and Dobbs maintain their innocence.

The parents of Thomas Foran live in Philadelphia and their father is a working man. Mrs. Foran says she struggled to bring Tom up "right" and all her 12 children attended Sunday school regularly when young. Tom ran away from home came to Baltimore and began to associate with youths with police records.

Charles Mullen, who confessed and brought their conviction, later repudiated his statement, saying it was dictated by the police and that he was forced to sign it.

"I don't know why I made a confession," says Mullen. "I answered yes to the questions of the police. They would not let me alone. It was easier to say yes. Dobbs says that some day they will find the murderer, but it will be after the other boys are dead. I think we should be hanged if we killed a man, but we didn't. We did not have a fair trial. The police told us they would help us prove our innocence, but they bore false witness against us."

"Take Loeb and Leopold," continued Mullen, referring to two Chicago millionaires' sons who admitted murder and were given life imprisonment. "They were guilty and ought to hang, but they got off. That is what money gets you."

Foran cries in his cell, and says that "the cards were stacked against us. We are not guilty."

The boys were convicted largely by eyewitnesses who have no money, and the matter of an appeal, which is costly, has not been decided.

However, a movement is under way to raise a fund for the defense of the boys. If the boys are hanged they will be the first white persons executed here in 20 years. Many are indignant because in a similar case three years ago, in which adults killed a man under parrelling circumstances, the accused were convicted and given life imprisonment.

Leopold Had First Visitors in Penitentiary Yesterday

Joliet, Ill.—Nathan Leopold, Jr., serving terms of 99 years and life, for the kidnapping and murder of Robert Franks, received his first visitors in the state penitentiary Tuesday morning, when his brother Foreman Leopold and Attorney Clarence S. Darrow, who represented the slayers in their trial spent fifteen minutes conversing with him in the prison visiting room.

Foreman Leopold and Darrow who said he was "acting as a friend of the family," arrived at the institution shortly after ten o'clock and were closeted with Warden Whitman for more than half an hour before going to the interview room.

With them was Allan Loeb, brother of Richard Loeb, who is serving the same sentence as Leopold.

WASHINGTON AND GIANTS HAVE IT ALL BUT CINCHED

Unless Miracle Happens They'll Compete in Coming Big Series.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Baseball's Trojan war, in which the allied cities of both leagues combined to recapture the world's championship, held by New York for three seasons, will apparently end in compromise.

Unless a diamond miracle intervenes, the Giants and the Senators will fight it out in the world series. Today, the Giants lead Brooklyn by one game and Pittsburgh by three and one-half and Washington maintains its two contest margin over the fading world champions. Each club with four games to play, needs to win only three to clinch its respective pennant. Both are now playing a fighting and triumphant game which apparently insures their league success.

The gods smiled upon the Giants yesterday in their 4-2 victory over Pittsburgh which virtually eliminated the Pirates.

Giants Got the Breaks. New York got the breaks, but also made them. Wilson's home run clout in the fifth inning overcame Yde's clever pitching and an impenetrable infield defense, whose three double plays in early innings had nipped the Giant attempts.

In the next inning, Lindstrom's hunt hit a clod of dirt and went safe. Young sacrificed and Kelly's infield out advanced the rookie to third. At this point strategy entered—and failed. Meusel was passed purposely to get Terry, who hit the first pitch of the game, which Lindstrom scored. Wilson poked a slow roller between third and short. Traynor made a sparkling pick up, but his hurried throw was just a trifle higher than Grimm could stretch and the winning run was over. The Pirates could not stop a double steal of which Terry scored without a throw as Wilson was run down. Earl Smith's two home runs came with nobody on, although Pittsburgh left nine men on the sacks at other times.

Pirates Had Most Chances. The Pirates had more chances than the Giants but could not convert them into runs. Wright led a superb exhibition of defense with 12 chances and Yde and Morrison allowed only six hits to nine off Barnes—but the Giants got four runs.

Brooklyn pursued its hope by beating the Cubs 6-5. Grimes was ruffled by 13 Chicago hits, but went the route. The Rhinos have two more games to play—both with Boston and cannot win unless New York drops three of its four with Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

Washington added Thurston, White Sox pitching ace, to the victims of its irresistible march to glory and Washington's first pennant, winning 6-3. Sam Rice increased his season's record of consecutive hitting to 31 games. The Yankees going down fighting, won again from Cleveland 2-0 as Jones pitched a steady game.

Cincinnati surrendered fourth place in the National to Chicago by losing twice to Boston 7-6 and 5-3 and Rehm, a recent pitcher won for St. Louis over Philadelphia 9-4 in the other National League game.

The Athletics used three pitchers to defeat the Browns 4-2 in the American. Boston and Detroit were not scheduled.

Golfers from Six Cities Left in Golf Tournament By Associated Press Leased Wire Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 25.—Six cities, among them the three largest in the country, are represented by the eight survivors who today are playing the third round of the National Amateur Golf Tournament at the Merion Cricket Club.

The competitors comprise one college youth, two young men about to cast their vote for president and five veterans of tournament golf.

R. E. Knepper and Dexter Cummings, Chicago, Bobby Jones of Atlanta and Max R. Marston of Philadelphia, Francis Quimet and Jess P. Guilford, Boston, George Von Elm of Los Angeles, E. H. Driggs, Jr., of New York play today.

Former World Series Still Talk of "Bugs"

By Associated Press Leased Wire New York, Sept. 25.—From a spectacular viewpoint, the world's series of 1923 in which the New York Yankees turned back the New York Giants and climbed the championship peak after two previously unsuccessful battles with the McGrawmen, eclipsed any on record but the palm for the hardest fought, the struggle goes to the famous series between the Giants and Boston Red Sox in 1912.

In that memorable fight for premier diamond honors a dozen years ago, the rival clans, led by John McGraw and Jake Stahl, fought through eight games, including an eleven-inning tie, before the Red Sox gained the verdict. Coming from behind after apparently being hopelessly beaten, the Giants captured two games in a row, only to drop the eight and deciding game in ten bitterly contested innings by a count of 3 to 2, with a fatal error by Fred Snodgrass, Giant outfielder, causing defeat that was heart-breaking to the National Leaguers and their premier mound ace, Christy Mathewson.

Observers of that series recall that so nerve-wrecking was the struggle, played for the most part in cold

Pennant Dope of Leagues at Glance

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Washington still is leading the New York team by two games. Each team has four more games to play. If the Yankees should win all of their four remaining games, they would have three of its four to win the pennant. The final standing in that case would be:

Washington	98	60	.600
New York	88	62	.578

NATIONAL LEAGUE

New York is leading, one game ahead of Brooklyn and three and a half games ahead of Pittsburgh. New York has four more games to play, Brooklyn has only two, and Pittsburgh has six. If Brooklyn should win both of its remaining games New York would have to win three of its four to win the pennant. The standing in that case would be:

New York	98	60	.600
Brooklyn	94	60	.610
Brooklyn	93	61	.604

If Pittsburgh should win all of its six remaining games New York would have to win only two of its four in order to beat out the Pirates. The standing then would be:

New York	98	60	.600
Pittsburgh	92	61	.601

weather and under the handicap of frequent hops back and forth between the two scenes of action, that players were scarcely able to control their emotions in the final game. When it was all over rival managers declared their belief that their men could not have stood the strain of further competition.

On only one other occasion has the series gone the limit of games before a decision was reached. That was in 1909 when the Pittsburgh Pirates triumphed over the Detroit Tigers. Each club won on alternate days in this battle until the Pirates made it four out of seven with Babe Adams figuring as the outstanding hero with three of the Pittsburgh triumphs to his credit.

In 1903, series rules called for the best five out of nine games to decide the championship and it took eight contests before the Boston Americans vanquished Pittsburgh. With the same regulation prevailing, eight games were required before Cincinnati took the measure of the Chicago White Sox in 1919 and the Giants downed the Yankees in 1921, while Cleveland and Brooklyn met seven times in 1920 before the Indians triumphed. The seven-game rule has been in effect again since 1921.

The quickest series on record was that of 1914 when the Boston Braves, after their sensational pennant drive, overthrew Connie Mack's Athletics in four straight games. The Chicago Cubs, conquering Detroit in 1907, and the Giants, downing the Yankees in 1922, also rung up records of four victories and no defeats, but in each of these instances a tie game prevented a clean sweep.

OGLE CO. FARM BUREAU OFFERS ESSAY PRIZES

Boys and Girls of Co. to Compete in Contest; Ends Nov. 10.

Oregon, Ill.—The Ogle County Farm Bureau has opened to the boys and girls of Ogle county in all grades up to and including second year high, an opportunity to compete in an essay contest. The essays are to be written on the subject, "Why Dad is a Farm Bureau Member" or "Why Dad Should Join the Farm Bureau."

To stimulate interest and competition in this contest the Farm Bureau is offering a prize of $10 for the best essay, $5 for the second, $2.50 for the third, $2 for each of the next five and $1 each for the next five.

Other county Farm Bureaus in Illinois and in other states are putting on similar contests simultaneously, and premiums are being offered by the state and national associations. The Illinois Agricultural Association offers $25 for the best essay in Illinois, $15 for the second, $10 for the third and $3 each for the next five. The American Farm Bureau Federation is also offering four trips to Chicago at the time of its annual meeting in December, for the best essay in each of the four regional districts.

A letter is being sent to each school in the county asking the teachers to call attention to the contest so that pupils might be working on their essays. A committee, selected by C. E. Bamforth, president of the Ogle County Farm Bureau, John E. Cross, county superintendent of the schools, and Farm Adviser, D. E. Warren, will judge the essays.

Oct. 1 is the opening date of the contest and closing date is Nov. 10. The official rules of the contest are as follows:

Open to all boys and girls of the schools of Ogle county in grades up to and including the second year of high school.

Dates of contest from Oct. 7 to Nov. 10.

Subject of essay to be choice between: a. "Why Dad Should Join the Farm Bureau."

b. "Why Dad is a Farm Bureau Member."

Prices offered by the Ogle County Farm Bureau, as follows:

$10.00—1st prize.
$5.00—2nd prize.
$2.50—3rd prize.
$2.00—next five.
$1.00—next five.

All essays must be in the office of the Ogle County Farm Bureau by Nov. 10, 1924.

Points to be considered in essays are:

1.—Facts on the subject.
2.—How the story is told.
3.—English, spelling and punctuation.
4.—General appearance and neatness.

The contest will be judged by the committee appointed by the president of the Ogle County Farm Bureau, the county superintendent of schools and the Farm Adviser.

Maytag GYRAFOAM ALUMINUM WASHER

The announcement of this machine marks a new milestone in washing machine history. It introduces not only a new Maytag washer but an entirely new and revolutionary principle—the first radical advance in the washing machine industry in ten years. It is not a vacuum type; it is not a dolly type; it is not a cylinder or oscillating type. It is an entirely new principle, one that washes clothes by water force alone.

Never before has a washing machine been developed to such a degree of perfection as the Maytag Gyrafoam Washer. The tub is of cast aluminum; will not warp, leak, corrode, or rust. It is beautiful and delicate in its appearance; simple, safe and economical in its operation; in construction it is strong and sturdy and will give a lifetime of service and satisfaction. It is equipped with the new Maytag all metal divided wringer—a wringer that is unexcelled in beauty, convenience and efficiency. Few people realize the satisfaction that can be obtained from so highly perfected wringer until they have seen and tried the one on the new Maytag Gyrafoam Washer.

It was a specious answer. Such words—laying stress upon the victories Allah sent him—had aforetime served to disarm his enemies. But they served not now. Instead, they did but fan the flames of Asad's wrath.

"Blasphemy not," he croaked, and his tall form quivered with rage. His sallow old face grew rufous. "She was brought thus in secret out of fear that were her presence known thy true purpose too must stand revealed."

"And whatever that true purpose may have been," put in Marzak, "it was not the task entrusted thee of raiding the Spanish treasure-galley."

"Tis what I mean, my son," Asad agreed. Then with a commanding gesture—

"Wilt thou tell me without further lies what thy purpose was?" he asked.

"How?" said Sak-el-Bahr, and he smiled never so faintly. "Hast thou not said that this purpose was revealed by what I did? Rather, then, I think it is for me to ask thee for some such information. I do assure thee, my lord, that it was no part of my intention to neglect the task entrusted me. But just because I feared lest knowledge of her presence might lead my enemies to suppose what thou art now supposing, and perhaps persuade thee to forget all that I have done for the glory of Islam, I determined to bring her secretly aboard."

"My real aim, since you must know it, was to land her somewhere on the coast of France whence she might return to her own land and her own people. That done, I should have set about intercepting the Spanish galley, and never fear but that by Allah's favor I should have succeeded."

"By the horns of Shaitan," swore Marzak, "thrusting himself forward, 'he is the very father and mother of lies. Wilt thou explain this desire to be rid of a wife thou hast but wed?' he demanded."

"Aye," growled Asad. "Canst answer that?"

"Thou shalt hear the truth," said Sak-el-Bahr.

"The praise to Allah!" mocked Marzak.

"But I warn you," the corsair continued, "that to you it will seem less easy to believe by much than any falsehood I could invent. Years ago in England where I was born I loved this woman and should have taken her to wife. But there were men and circumstances that defamed me to her so that she would not wed me, and I went forth with hatred of her in my heart. Last night the love of her which I believed to be dead and turned to loathing proved to be still a living force. Loving her, I came to see that I had used her unworthily, and I was urged by a desire above all others to undo the evil I had done."

On that he paused, and after an instant's silence Asad laughed angrily and contemptuously.

"Since when has man expressed his love for a woman by putting her from him?" he asked in a voice of scorn that showed the precise value he set upon such a statement.

"I warned thee it would seem incredible," said Sak-el-Bahr.

"Is it not plain, O my father, that this marriage of his was no more than a pretense?" cried Marzak.

"As plain as the light of day," replied Asad. "Thy marriage with that woman made an impious mock of the true Faith. It was no marriage. It was a blasphemous pretense, thine only aim to thwart me, abusing my regard for the Prophet's Holy Law, and to set her beyond my reach."

He turned to Vigiello, who stood a little behind Sak-el-Bahr.

"Did thy men put me this traitor into irons," he said.

"Heaven hath guided thee to a wise decision. O my father!" cried Marzak, his voice jubilant.

But his was the only jubilant note that was sounded, his the only voice that was raised.

"The decision is more like to guide you both to heaven," replied Sak-el-Bahr, undaunted. On the instant he had resolved upon his course.

"Stay!" he said, raising his hand to Vigiello, who indeed had shown no sign of stirring. He stopped close up to Asad, and what he said did not go beyond those who stood immediately about the Basha and Rosamund, who strained her ears that she might lose no word of it.

"Do not think, Asad," he said, "that I will submit me like a camel to its burden. Consider thy position well. If I but raise my voice to call my sea-hawks to me, only Allah can tell how many will be left to obey thee. Darest thou put this matter to the test?" he asked, his countenance grave and solemn, but entirely fearless, as of a man in whom there is no doubt of the issue as it concerns himself.

Asad's eyes glittered dully, his color faded to a deathly ashen hue. "Thou infamous traitor—" he began in a thick voice, his body quivering with anger.

"Ah no," Sak-el-Bahr interrupted him. "Were I a traitor, it is what I should have done already, knowing as I do that in any division of our forces numbers will be heavily on my side. Let then my silence prove my unwavering loyalty, Asad. Let it weigh with thee in considering my conduct, not permit thyself to be swayed by Marzak there, who reckons nothing so that he vents his petty hatred of me."

"Do not heed him, O my father!" cried Marzak. "It can not be that—"

"Peace!" growled Asad, somewhat stricken on a sudden.

And there was peace whilst the Basha stood moodily combing his white beard, his glittering eyes sweeping from Oliver to Rosamund and back again. He was weighing what Sak-el-Bahr had said. He more than feared that it might be no more than true, and he realized that if he were to provoke a mutiny here he would be putting all to the test, setting all upon a throw in which the dice might well be canted against him.

If Sak-el-Bahr prevailed, he would prevail not merely aboard this galley, but throughout Algiers, and Asad would be cast down never to rise again. On the other hand, if he bared his scimitar and called upon the faithful to support him, it might chance that, recognizing in him the exalted of Allah to whom their loyalty was due, they would rally to him. He even thought it might be probable. Yet the stake he put upon the board was too vast. The game appalled him, whom nothing yet had appalled, and it scarce needed a matter of caution from Biskaine to determine him to hold his hand.

He looked at Sak-el-Bahr again, his glance now sullen.

"I will consider thy words," he announced in a voice that was unsteady. "I would not be unjust nor steer my course by appearances alone. Allah forbid!"

CHAPTER XXVI SHEIK MAT

Under the inquisitive gaping stare of all about them stood Rosamund and Sak-el-Bahr regarding each other in silence for a little spell after the Basha's departure. The very galley-slaves, stirred from their habitual lethargy by happenings so curious and unusual, craned their shifty necks to peer at them with a flicker of interest in their dull, weary eyes.

Sak-el-Bahr's feelings as he considered Rosamund's white face in the fading light were most oddly conflicting. Dismay at what had befallen and some anxious dread of what must follow were leavened by a certain measure of relief.

He realized that in no case could her concealment have continued long. Eleven mortal hours had she spent in the cramped and almost suffocating space of that pannel, in which he had intended to do no more than carry her aboard. The uneasiness which had been occasioned him by the impossibility to deliver her from that close confinement when Asad had announced his resolve to accompany them upon that voyage had steadily been increasing as hour succeeded hour, and still he found no way to release her from a situation in which sooner or later, when the limits of her endurance were reached, her presence must be betrayed.

This release, which he could not have contrived, had been contrived for him by the suspicious and malice of Marzak. That was the one grain of consolation in the present peril—to himself, who mattered nothing, and to her, who mattered all. Adversity had taught him to prize benefits, however slight, and to confront perils, however overwhelming. So he hugged the present slender benefit, and resolutely braced himself to deal with the situation as he found it, taking the fullest advantage of the hiatus which his words had sown in the heart of the Basha.

He hugged, too, the thought that as things had fallen out, from being oppressor and oppressed, Rosamund and he were become fellows in misfortune, sharing now a common peril. He found it a sweet thought to dwell on. Therefore was it that he faintly smiled as he looked into Rosamund's white, strained face.

That smile evoked from her the question that had been burdening her mind.

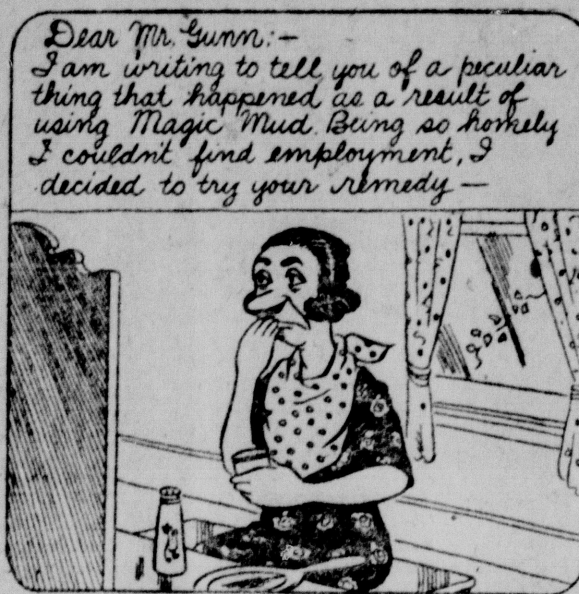

"What now? What now?" she asked huskily, and held out appealing hands to him.

"Now," said he coolly, "let us be thankful that you are delivered from quarters destructive both to comfort and to dignity. Let me lead you to those I had prepared for you, which you would have occupied long since but for the ill-timed coming of Asad. Come."

And he waved an inviting hand toward the gangway leading to the poop.

The WELL-DRESSED MAN

By BEAUNASH

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

A Neglected Bosom Friend

The garment that the proof of the pudding is in, to misquote Cervantes, has been overlooked in the theme of dress for many years. Like the lowly fiddle which became the plebeian vest of our youth turned into the patrician waistcoat of our manhood. However, though it changed its name, it did not change its character. A waistcoat went with a suit just as trousers do, but up to very recently, no attention was paid to its style, which had hardly varied since its introduction as an article of men's dress.

Along came the short, pointless, double-breasted waistcoat to pair off with the single-breasted, loose-fitting coat and full-draped, wide-bottom trousers. Then, the waistcoat began to pat itself on the chest and to feel that it had "arrived" as a garment of style importance. However, the double-breasted waistcoat of the same material as the coat has already ceased to be a novelty. It was so overdue that the inevitable re-action set in, as it does in all extreme fashions, which becoming too fashionable, are not fashionable at all.

Nevertheless, the double-breasted waistcoat is being taken up in fancy fabrics of wool or silk or linen, so that the life of this style promises to be appreciably prolonged. Such a waistcoat, illustrated here, is made of soft cashmere wool either in plain colors, modest stripes or bolder checks. It has a very low notch collar that leads into broad, curved lapels. The seyes (armholes) are deeply cut away to permit free arm-reach and shoulder-play.

Where and when may this fancy-pattern waistcoat be worn? It may correctly accompany a dark-colored business or lounge suit, but be sure that it is dark. A light-colored waistcoat under a light-colored coat produces an excess of color that is "loud" and distinctly bad form. If light color be used in your waistcoat, it should be employed nowhere else. Even cravat and shirt must be subdued in shade for proper contrast, though a diagonally striped scarf accompanying the plain waistcoat is rather pleasing. Do not be afraid of color. Carefully chosen, it enlivens a man's dress and lends crispness and character.

New York—Vacations are over and the crowd has returned to New York. The day after Labor Day the influx became evident. It has increased each day until New York is her bustling, crowding self again, pushing and jamming for every inch of available space.

Broadway, deserted during the summer, is spick and span with the fall showing of new plays.

Cooler weather has arrived for a protracted visit and the new styles of the season are being displayed in the evening parade.

Over in Fifth Avenue, top coats, spats and gloves are seen on the men of the afternoon march and the women are sauntering along exhibiting the latest in tailored suits.

Fall is the most pleasant season in New York. The shackles of a torturing Summer are thrown off and everything is made ready for the gay winter season, when New York is in its most entertaining mood. Plays are new, audiences are fresh, dancing haunts re-open with new decorations and lavish appointments.

Patrolman James O'Donnell failed to rescue a boy from drowning three months ago, and nearly lost his own life in the vain attempt, because he could not swim.

Yesterday a fellow officer tried to restrain him when he dived into the river in answer to a call for help. But he dived anyway and saved a drowning woman.

"Don't be so amazed," he chided fellow officers on the river bank, after he had made the rescue, I've been taking swimming lessons."

now appears that he really has been the goat of ignorance. Careful analysis of mortality statistics indicate that preventable diseases do more toward ending man's sojourn on the earth than the lapse of time—other wise referred to as old age. Occasion has arrived for giving the old man with the fatal scythe a square deal—let him have a chance to live up to his reputation.

Vaccination is the best way to escape the threats of a good many diseases. This procedure will prevent smallpox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, typhoid fever, and a number of other invisible enemies.

Sad experiences in the past have taught Chicago that the way to prevent smallpox is to vaccinate folks against it. That is why the city health department has examined 337,345 arms of school children and vaccinated 56,557 individuals this year.

Out of 102,000 school children examined in the Chicago schools this year, a total of 81,000 physical and dental defects were recorded. Some children had more than one defect. Such conditions as these, when uncorrected, are what lead frequently to the degenerative diseases of later life, says the state health director.

Communities that do not give children the benefits of physical examinations are not giving the children a square deal.

Health officers are not trying to alarm people by pointing out the vast amounts of damage done by diseases and defects, says Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state director of public health. Neither do they wish to imply that a large percentage of folks regarded as physically unfit, from a military standpoint, are not capable of earning a living. The object is to point out the way to even a better physical condition than now obtained among the population as a whole and experience has fully demonstrated that such an object is well within the bounds of possibility.

With ROOSEVELT IN AFRICA

by W. Robert Foran

© 1924 NEA Service Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Robert Foran, newspaper correspondent, accompanies the Theodore Roosevelt expedition into Africa in 1905. They arrive at Mombassa, the gateway to British East Africa, and then make the railroad journey to the first camp on the game-crowded Kapiti Plains. With Colonel Roosevelt are his son, Kermit, and three scientific members of his staff—Major Edgar A. Mearns, Edmund Heller and J. Allen Loving.

After a wonderfully successful shooting trip in the South country, the expedition camps for more hunting at a farm called Salgai-Sai. Going next to Naivasha, the party meets with continued good sport. They are at Nairobi during race week, where Roosevelt is paid every conceivable honor. Now he is giving the main address at the Nairobi Institute at Nairobi before a large audience. "I believe this country has a great agricultural and industrial future," he says.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Yet, I hope that you will always keep in mind that a real white man's country can only be built up by making the opportunities favorable for the actual home-maker. It is the actual settler, not the speculator, who should be encouraged. The prime need is for the settlers who will make this country their permanent home and think of it as such; and it is on this account desirable that the largest possible proportion of these men should live on farms which they themselves own, and make their living from the soil."

"There is another point, gentlemen—So far I have your full support. Now I am going to speak at the risk of not receiving your support. In making this a white man's country, remember that only the laws of righteousness but your own real and ultimate self-interest demand that the black man be treated with scrupulous justice, that he be safeguarded in his rights, and helped upward and not pressed downward."

"Brutality and injustice are especially hateful when exercised on the helpless. I have no particle of patience with the sentimentalists. I think that sentimentality probably does more harm to the individuals for whom it is invoked than brutality itself."

"The native tribes hereabouts are, of course, hopelessly incompetent to better themselves or to utilize this country to advantage without white leadership and direction, and progress among them will be the work of not years but of many generations. You must occupy a position of unquestioned mastery and leadership; but for your own sakes as well as for the sake of humanity and morality, you must exercise that leadership and mastery with a deep sense of all the responsibilities which it entails."

"That is why I so emphatically believe in helping the missionary, whatever his creed, who labors so sincerely, so disinterestedly and with practical good sense in his field of work."

"Naturally, I have a peculiar feeling for the settlers, because they remind me so much of the men with whom I worked and with whose aspirations and ideals I have so deeply sympathized in our own west."

"But I also have a most profound sympathy for the government officials, for I, too, have been a government official. If you will consult the newspapers of my own land, you will find that there are a great number of persons who can dissemble any liking for me."

"At the risk of seeming to preach, and because of the sincerity of my belief in you and the earnestness of my wish for your future welfare, I want to lay stress on two things especially."

"Let the people here not be discouraged. When John Smith settled in Virginia, for years things were so bad that they started clearing out, and they had to get their provisions from abroad. Mortality occurred sufficient to cause a panic in any colony. The history of these colonies was checked with disasters, considerably more than this protectorate will ever have to face.

"The second thing I want to say is to the individual settler himself. The government can do much, in various directions, but the one all-important factor in the success of each individual settler must be that individual's own character and capacity. If there is any point as to which he can make the government better and more responsive to the needs of the settlers, it is his duty to work for the achievement of these ends. But he can set it down as an absolute certainty that a pound of complaint won't help him as much as an ounce of real effort to do his own business well. What he has to face is the need for genuine hard work—work that needs special training and capacity."

"It is the farmer, the man who grows wheat or cotton, breeds sheep or cattle—whatever it may be—the man who makes his profit out of the soil or the meat, or a dairy or fruit or some other product of the soil, upon whose success the permanent success of this country must depend. The discovery of paying mineral deposits would be a good thing—but with not much stress on the good—but it would be of no consequence from the standpoint of your permanent well-being when compared to the welfare of the farmer; for a sudden boom, and a few great fortunes, in no shape or way take the place of steady and permanent growth among those who come to take possession of the soil, and to leave it as an inheritance to their children who are to grow up in this country."

"Now, a farmer's business is just as much a science as any other's. Nobody would think that a farmer could ever night turn bookkeeper or lawyer. Yet, in every new country, many people drift in who seem to think that bookkeepers and lawyers, and men who have never done a stroke of real work for a living at all, can suddenly become successful farmers. A quarter of a century ago I met any number of such men in the west. They were generally young fellows from the eastern states or from England, who perhaps had never done any work at all, or who had perhaps not been over successful as clerks or in some other sedentary occupation."

"They would come out there with a small capital which they would proceed to invest without any knowledge; they would halfheartedly and feebly try to work at something totally alien to them; and then, unless they had exceptional stuff in them, they would sag behind in the race of life and gradually become what we called 'remittance men'—that is to say, shiftless creatures who lived on whatever their families were able to send them."

"Since I have been in this country, I have known more than one young man coming hither with five hundred or a thousand pounds, and no experience whatever in his past which fitted him to become an East African farmer. If any such man consulted me, I should tell him that the best thing he could do with his money was to put it safely away somewhere for at least two years; after meanwhile to remember that a social and sporting life must be considered purely as play and never allowed to interfere with work, and that he had his whole profession to learn."

"Therefore, the wise thing for him to do was to go out on some farm kept by some real farmer and ask to be allowed to work for his keep, remembering always that unless he worked very hard, very steadily and with much intelligence the man who let him work for his keep would make a losing bargain."

"If then, the young man stood the trial, worked till he really knew the business well and, in short, showed that he had good stuff in him, why it would be all right; and if he did not stand the trial, it would be proof positive that his presence was of benefit neither to himself nor to the colony."

CALVIN COOLIDGE THE BIOGRAPHY OF A PRESIDENT

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS

Calvin Coolidge was born July 4, 1872. His early life, following the death of his mother, was spent on a farm. As a boy he was quiet and shy. Coolidge attended Amherst, in 1905 he married Grace Goodhue, a school teacher. He practiced law in Northampton, and later held offices of councilman, representative, state senator, president of the Senate, lieutenant-governor and governor. As governor he brought sweeping reforms to the state, cutting the departments and bureaus from about 118 to about 20. He vetoed several bills, including one regulating the sale of wines and beers, giving as his reason that such a law would not give the people beer anyway and it was up to the Supreme Court to act.

CHAPTER V.

Boston Police Strike.

If all the words written about the now famous Boston police strike were placed end to end, they would reach, probably, from the western end of Mars to the eastern tip of the moon. The strike is regarded, and not incorrectly, as the critical point in the "national" career of President Calvin Coolidge. Had it not been for the strike, Coolidge unquestionably would have gone into the shadows of private law practice and been a respected ex-governor of a respected state. He would have been little known outside of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The important thing to consider is that the strike did occur and that as a result Coolidge sprang into the national limelight and still is there.

Three men really figured in the strike, and each figured as prominently as either of the others. These men were the then police commissioner, Edwin U. Curtis; the then mayor, Andrew J. Peters, and Governor Coolidge.

If any one man must be given more than a third of the share of credit for forcing the issue, it is Commissioner of Police Curtis. It is true that in every move he made he was backed stoutly by the governor, but the point is that he took the initiative.

To appreciate Coolidge's part in the strike, it is well to understand the causes leading up to the trouble. They are as important as the strike itself.

The commissioner of police of the city of Boston is an appointee of the governor. His term is five years and he can be removed only by consent of the governor's council and for good cause.

The mayor, on the other hand, while holding no jurisdiction over the police commissioner, except in "cases of tumult, riot or mob," must see to it that the city furnishes accommodations and pay to the police. Any improvement in condition must come from the city.

Some few years before September, 1919, when the strike broke, an attempt had been made by the police to unionize and affiliate with the American Federation of Labor. This move had been put down effectively. But now it was rearing its head again, and in a more determined way than ever. Plans for organization and affiliation had been carefully laid and before the surprised city knew it the police had unionized.

The commissioner of police promptly called 19 leaders on the "carpet" and preferred charges against them. By this time public interest was being aroused, and excitement ran high. Mayor Peters appointed a committee to try to reach some agreement that would prevent trouble and this committee could best be reached by recommending a local union not connected in any way with the American Federation of Labor. Also the 19 leaders were to be reinstated.

The mayor endorsed this finding, but the commissioner couldn't exactly see it that way. He suspended the 19 policemen. The mayor wrote to Coolidge urging him to accept the report of the committee, but Coolidge adopted a hands-off policy. His letter to Mayor Peters was especially significant.

"It seems to me," he wrote, "that there has arisen a confusion which would be cleared up if each person undertakes to perform the duties imposed upon him by law."

"It seems plain that the duty of is—

ALL WOMEN WHO WORK

Should Know how this Worker was Made Strong and Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Zahl, N. Dak.—"I was nervous and weak and was not regular. I also had a sick headache frequently. I was sickly for seven years and finally had a nervous breakdown following an operation. I am a dressmaker and milliner, and a lady I work for told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am taking it and it has made me well and able to do my work again. I have even helped take care of a sick neighbor recently, so you can see how it is. I highly praise your medicine and you may use my letter as you see fit. I hope it will help some other woman."—Mrs. OLE NORDLIE, Box 23, Zahl, North Dakota.

Over 121,000 women have so far replied to our question. "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 88 per cent. of these replies answer "Yes."

This means that 93 out of every 100 women taking this medicine for ailments for which it is recommended are "cured" by it. For sale by all druggists.

CALVIN COOLIDGE AS HE LOOKED AT THE TIME OF THE BOSTON POLICE STRIKE.

made forthwith, accompanied by a statement that such additional improvements will be made at the earliest possible time and without reference to any other existing conditions in the police department.

"There is no authority in the office of governor for interference in the making of orders by the police commissioner or in the action of the mayor and the city. I am unable to cover any action that I can take."

The strike came. Toward evening on Tuesday, September 9, 1919, 1117 patrolmen out of 1544 walked out. The evening passed without disorder, but the next day the lawless element of the city awoke. Street cars were stoned. Shop windows broken open. Dice games held openly on the streets and crimes of violence recorded.

The day following, the mayor issued a proclamation taking charge of the police force. He dispatched an immediate request to Governor Coolidge, asking for "at least" three companies of state militia, to report in the city not later than 5 p. m. Coolidge sent back word that he awaited their requests and would do everything possible to help.

Instead of sending three companies, however, he personally took charge of the situation, issuing a proclamation announcing that he had assumed the authority and calling out the entire militia of the state.

Just before the governor issued his proclamation, he was visited by a delegation of union officials, who urged him in a uncertain language to reinstate the striking patrolmen and to settle the difficulty so as not to bring harm to the strikers. But Coolidge merely stood silently until the delegation filed out of his office.

The charge made by his enemies is that he didn't move until he had ample time to see which way the public sentiment was going. That he sat on the fence until he saw that his move would gain popular support. Coolidge never talks of the Boston strike. But in that he is stoner of police who was responsible to Coolidge.

Then Coolidge came back with his famous answer that "there is no right to strike against the public safety by anybody, anywhere, any time."

He added that he did not appoint the commissioner and had no intention of removing him.

The Tangle

"All right, I'll send him a bill if you're sure it's a cheese," said the accountant to the old storekeeper.

The accountant sent the man a bill for the cheese. The supposed debtor wrote back very indignantly saying he was a hardware dealer and never bought a cheese in his life. The old man scratched his head. He seemed to be all at sea; then his eyes brightened. He drew the paper toward him and put a little o inside the big O. Handing it back to the accountant he said, as though everything was now explained:

"There it is. I forgot to put the hole in the cheese. It's a grindstone he owes me for."

Ruth, I hope I'm not trying to make Jack pay me for a cheese when it is a grindstone for which he is in my debt. I am insisting that he apologize for what he said to me about Karl's telephone, because I think he is jealous of Karl and thinks me disloyal. Perhaps he is neither jealous of Karl nor doubtful of me, but knowing it would be impossible for him to give me such a wonderful present, he is hurt that I have accepted them from another man.

"Now here, Ruth, is my worst trouble. I don't think Dad is getting along as fast as we could wish. In fact mother takes the most pessimistic view of his condition. True, dad himself is very optimistic, and keeps talking about when he will get up again, but I don't like his wanting to have John come here and take his place. That isn't like dad a bit, if he thought he would ever get back into the harness.

Poor, poor mother! She is one of those women who is more of a wife than a mother. Although she loves us devotedly, I do not think there was ever a time in her life she would not have sacrificed both Alice and me for dad any day.

They've been particularly a happy couple. Sometimes, though, I think I will ask mother if when they were first married it did not take them a little while to adjust themselves. I remember her saying one time that people either grow together or grow apart. They have grown together, and now, if anything happens to dad her whole life will be wrecked and broken. I dare not think what will become of her.

Well, Ruth dear, this is a terrible letter to write to anyone, let alone a dearest friend. I hope you got out all right with my mother-in-law. I just seems to me as though John and I were having enough misunderstandings and troubles without her making it worse all the time. And as for that old maid, I thought I had got rid of her, and now here she bobs up again. I'll just have to settle with her in the near future once for all. She almost makes me feel a Borgia when I think of her.

As soon as you get everything settled at the apartment, you would better send me a long night letter collect, for I am very anxious to know exactly what has happened. If she has found the secret drawer, in my desk, I will never forgive her. There, I've told it to you, Ruth. There is a secret drawer, and I have found it.

Lovingly,

LESLIE.

Iowa Miners and Operators Join in Advertising Drive

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 24.—An advertising campaign to be financed jointly by the operators and mine workers, will be opened, Oct. 7, by coal mine operators and miners of Appanoose County, Iowa, to continue seven months.

Twenty-two mining companies and approximately 3,500 miners in sub-district number 1, of district 13, United Mine Workers of America, are co-operating in the marketing campaign. The operators have agreed to contribute an amount equal to that raised by the union. It is estimated that $49,000 will be raised.
